GE Global Research is Coming To MIT!

Interested in changing the world?

We are, too.

What:  GE Global Research Info Session
When:  Tuesday, October 18th, 5-6PM
Where:  4-231
          Refreshments will be provided
Who:  Undergraduate and Graduate Science & Engineering Majors, including:
          Electrical Engineering, Computer Science, Mechanical Engineering, Materials Science, Biomedical Engineering, Biology, Physics, Applied Physics, Applied Mathematics.

Find out more about how GE is developing innovative technology to solve the world’s toughest challenges in energy, healthcare, aviation, transportation, and many other areas. Employment opportunities are available for full-time positions (Masters & PhD), internships (all levels), and our Edison Engineering Development Program (Masters only).

Please Note: All non-PhDs interested in working in the US must have legal work authorization. (i.e. US Citizen, Permanent or Temporary Resident, Refugee, Asylee)

Apply today at www.gecareers.com
GE is an equal opportunity employer